ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ELLEN R. AURITI

Re: Legislative Modifications to the Solomon Amendment

You inquired whether the recent legislative modifications to the Solomon Amendment affect the University's exposure to loss of funding should a sub-element of the University, such as a law school, be found to be out of compliance with the law. My interpretation of these recent modifications is that even with the new provision sparing student financial aid under the October amendment to the Defense Department's fiscal spending bill, an institution such as the University of California can no longer expect to remain immunized from loss of federal funding from sources such as the Department of Health and Human Services if a subelement of the University (such as a law school or medical school) is found to have violated the Solomon Amendment.

The Solomon Amendment

The Solomon Amendment, with certain limited exceptions, permits federal funding for grants and contracts to an educational institution to be terminated if the institution is found to have a policy or practice that prohibits military recruiting on campus, prohibits access to student directory information for the same purpose, or maintains an anti-ROTC policy. 10 U.S.C. § 503, Note (Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1997); 10 U.S.C. § 983 (denial of Department of Defense grants and contracts) (see Tab 1). The reach of the Solomon Amendment as originally drafted extended to federally-funded student financial aid programs considered to be "grants" or "contracts" with institutions of higher education, such as the Federal Perkins Loan Program, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant Program and Federal Work Study Program. 63 Fed. Reg. 56,819 (Oct. 23, 1998) (final rule). In addition, under the original Department of Defense regulations implementing the Solomon Amendment, the law limited the termination of federal funding only to those sub-elements of an institution (such as a law school) found not to be in compliance with the law. Specifically, under Department of Defense regulations issued in final form in 1998, a "covered school" under the Solomon Amendment was defined as: an institution of higher education, or a subelement of an institution of higher education, subject to the following clarifications: (1) In the event of a determination affecting only a subelement of a parent institution, the limitations on the use of funds shall apply only to the subelement and not to the parent institution as a whole, and (2) The limitations on the use of funds shall not apply to any individual institution of higher education that is part of a single university system if that individual institution does not prevent entry to campus, access to students, or access to student (final rule) (citations omitted). So, under these regulations, if the law school of a campus were found to be out of compliance with the Solomon Amendment, the balance of federal contract or grant funding to the campus may not be threatened. Similarly, if a campus within a multi-campus university system were in compliance with the Solomon Amendment, its funding would not be threatened, even if a sister campus were found not to be in compliance with the law.

Recent Modifications to the Solomon Amendment

In October 1999 and January 2000, the landscape of the Solomon Amendment changed in two significant — though contrary — ways. Last fall, Representative Barney Frank successfully sponsored a modification to the Defense Department’s fiscal-2000 spending bill that exempts student aid from those federal funds that can be cut off under the Solomon Amendment. As signed by President Clinton on October 25, 1999, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000 consolidates and recodifies the Solomon Amendment and similar provisions, but expressly overrides those provisions with respect to student financial aid:

“During the current fiscal year and hereafter, any Federal grant of funds to an institution of higher education to be available solely for student financial assistance or related administrative costs may be used for the purpose for which the grant is made without regard to any provision contrary in section 514 of the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1997 ...”

Publ. L. No. 106-79 (Department of Defense Appropriation Act for Fiscal Year 2000, § 8120 (see Tab 2).

As a result of the passage of this legislation and the prevailing interpretation of the law as threatening only an offending sub-element’s federal funding (and not the institution’s as a whole), some newspapers announced that colleges and law schools would be able to bar military recruiters from campus without risking a loss of student-aid dollars. See Chronicle of Higher Student-Aid Funds,” at 2 (Oct. 26, 1999).

What was not widely reported, however, was Congress’ growing discontent with the Defense Department regulation limiting the scope of liability only to an institution’s offending sub-element. The Senate Armed Services Committee stated in a May 1999 report:

“The Committee strongly supports efforts to ensure military recruiters have access to high school and college campuses.
Section 568 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 prohibits the Department of Defense from providing funds by grant or contract to any institution of higher education that has a policy of denying or which effectively prevents military recruiters from entry to the campus, access to students on campuses, or access to directory information pertaining to students over the age of 17. The committee has learned that some in the Department of Defense may be interpreting this prohibition in a manner inconsistent with intent of Congress. The congressional intent is that if a college or university denies military recruiters access, then the entire institution shall be denied any further Department of Defense funds. The committee has been advised that, for instance, a law school or medical school denies access to military recruiters only funds to that specific school would be withdrawn. The committee intends that the entire university or institution would be affected by the prohibition on providing Department of Defense funds. The committee directs the Secretary of Defense to review the policies related to the prohibition of Department of Defense funds to institutions of higher learning that deny access to military recruiters, to ensure that the policies and practices are consistent with the intent of Congress.”

As a result of this concern, Congress quietly amended the Solomon Amendment on October 19, 1999, to ensure that “[n]o funds . . . may be provided by contract or grant . . . to an institution of higher education (including any subelement of such institution) if the Secretary of Defense determines that that institution (or subelement of that institution) has a policy or practice that impairs access to the institution for military recruiting. 10 U.S.C. § 983 (a) (emphasis added) (see Tab 3).

Following this modification to the law, the Defense Department determined that "urgent and compelling reasons exist to publish" an interim rule revising the implementation of the Solomon Amendment. 65 Fed. Reg. 2056 (Jan. 13, 2000). Accordingly, it issued an interim rule on January 13, 2000 directing that no federal funds shall be made available by contract or grant "to an institution of higher education that has a policy or practice of hindering" the ROTC or military recruiting on a campus. Comments are invited through March 13, 2000.

The Defense Department’s interim rule is ambiguous in many respects: it does not expressly repeal the former Defense Department regulations protecting an institution from an offending sub-element's or sister campus' conduct, and so it is inconsistent with those rules; it fails to acknowledge Representative Frank's revision to the Solomon Amendment that carves out student financial aid from the law's reach; and it is silent as to how other government agencies interpret the element/subelement issue in the newly-revised statute.

Nevertheless, one reasonable interpretation of the statutory modifications (particularly in view of Congress' recent statement of legislative intent) is that even with the new carve-out under the Solomon Amendment for student financial aid, an institution such as the University of California can no longer expect to remain immunized from loss of federal funding from sources such as the Department of Health and Human Services if a subelement of the University (such as a law school or medical school) is found to have violated the Solomon Amendment.

NOTES OF DECISIONS

Enlisted and Inductee distinguished 1
Enlistments requiring oath 2
Force and effect of oath 4
Induction without oath 3
Voluntary constructive enlistment 5

1. Enlisted and Inductee distinguished

2. Enlistments requiring oath

Former § 1581 of this title, requiring every soldier, at time of his enlistment, to take oath of allegiance, applied only to voluntary enlistment, and one certified into military service under Selective Draft Act of 1917, former §§ 201 to 211 of Appendix to Title 50, could not escape liability to military law because he had not taken required oath. Franke v. Murray, C.C.A.8 (Mo.) 1918, 248 F. 865, 160 C.C.A. 623.

3. Induction without oath

Where selectee was given required mental and physical examination and found mentally and physically fit for general military service, his induction was complete although he refused to take the oath. Smith v. Richart, E.D.S.C.1944, 53 F.Supp. 582.

"Induction" is completed upon acceptance by the government of the draftee irrespective of the desires, acts and mental attitudes of the draftee, and it is not the draftee's acceptance of the oath, but the acceptance by the government of him as a soldier that completes induction.

Where draftee was physically examined and accepted for service but refused to take the oath administered to all men successfully passing the physical examination, he was "inducted" into the armed forces of the United States and was subject to the jurisdiction of the Army and military law. U.S. ex rel. Diamond v. Smith, D.C.Mass.1942, 47 F.Supp. 607.

Where a man successfully passes the physical examination and is accepted by the Army for training and service, and all the steps prescribed have been taken, he is "inducted" into the Army whether he takes the oath administered to him or not. U.S. ex rel. Diamond v. Smith, D.C.Mass.1942, 47 F.Supp. 607.

4. Force and effect of oath

Fact, if true, that taking of oath by enliste at time of enlistment in United States military service is step which formalized the enlistment and without which there would be no binding enlistment would not cause all terms of enlistment to become subservient to the final oath. Pfle v. Corcoran, D.C.Colo.1968, 287 F.Supp. 554.

Where a person voluntarily enlists in the Navy and takes the prescribed oath, he enters the naval service of the United States government, and thereafter becomes subject to the orders and discipline provided for that branch of the service, although he is assigned to a naval training camp merely. Boatwright v. American Life Ins. Co., Iowa 1920, 180 N.W. 321, 191 Iowa 253.

5. Voluntary constructive enlistment

Where petitioner, believing that he would be enlisted in Navy as petty officer second class, refused to sign enlistment oath because enlistment contract indicated rank of petty officer third class, and petitioner subsequently signed contract upon being told that he would be court-§ 503. Enlistments: recruiting campaigns; compilation of directory information

(a) The Secretary concerned shall conduct intensive recruiting campaigns to obtain enlistments in the Regular Army, Regular Navy, Regular Air Force, Regular Marine Corps, and Regular Coast Guard.

(b)(1) The Secretary of Defense may collect and compile directory information pertaining to each student who is 17 years of age or older or in the eleventh grade (or its equivalent) or higher and who is enrolled in a secondary school in the United States or its territories, possessions, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

(2) The Secretary may make directory information collected and compiled under this subsection available to the armed forces for military recruiting purposes. Such information may not be disclosed for any other purpose.

(3) Directory information pertaining to any person may not be maintained for more than 3 years after the date the information pertaining to such person is first collected and compiled under this subsection.

(4) Directory information collected and compiled under this subsection shall be confidential, and a person who has had access to such information may not disclose such information except for the purposes described in paragraph (2).

(5) The Secretary of Defense shall prescribe regulations to carry out this subsection. Regulations prescribed under this subsection shall be submitted to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives. Regulations prescribed by the Secretaries concerned to carry out this subsection shall be as uniform as practicable.

(6) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as requiring, or authorizing the Secretary of Defense to require, that any educational institution furnish directory information to the Secretary.

(7) In this subsection, "directory information" means, with respect to a student, the student's name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, level of education, degrees received, and the most recent previous educational agency or institution attended by the student.

“(b) Specific steps.—As part of those improvements, the Secretary shall take the following steps:

“(1) Direct the Secretary of each military department to implement programs under which new recruits who are in the Delayed Entry Program [section 513 of this title] are encouraged to participate in physical fitness activities before reporting to basic training.

“(2) Develop a range of incentives for new recruits to participate in physical fitness programs, as well as for those recruits who improve their level of fitness while in the Delayed Entry Program [section 513 of this title], which may include access to Department of Defense military fitness facilities, and access to military medical facilities in the case of a recruit who is injured while participating in physical activities with recruiters or other military personnel.

“(3) Evaluate whether partnerships between recruiters and reserve components, or other innovative arrangements, could provide a pool of qualified personnel to assist in the conduct of physical training programs for new recruits in the Delayed Entry Program [section 513 of this title].”

Improvements in Medical Prescreening of Applicants for Military Service

“(a) In general.—The Secretary of Defense shall improve the medical prescreening of applicants for entrance into the Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps.

“(b) Specific steps.—As part of those improvements, the Secretary shall take the following steps:

“(1) Require that each applicant for service in the Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps (A) provide to the Secretary the name of the applicant’s medical insurer and the names of past medical providers, and (B) sign a release allowing the Secretary to request and obtain medical records of the applicant.

“(2) Require that the forms and procedures for medical prescreening of applicants that are used by recruiters and by Military Entrance Processing Commands be revised so as to ensure that medical questions are specific, unambiguous, and tied directly to the types of medical separations most common for recruits during basic training and follow-on training.

“(3) Add medical screening tests to the examinations of recruits carried out by Military Entrance Processing Stations, provide more thorough medical examinations to selected groups of applicants, or both, to the extent that the Secretary determines that to do so could be cost effective in reducing attrition at basic training.

“(4) Provide for an annual quality control assessment of the effectiveness of the Military Entrance Processing Commands in identifying medical conditions in recruits that existed before enlistment in the Armed Forces, each such assessment to be performed by an agency or contractor other than the Military Entrance Processing Commands.”

Reform of Military Recruiting Systems

“(a) In general.—The Secretary of Defense shall carry out reforms in the recruiting systems of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps in order to improve the quality of new recruits and to reduce attrition among recruits.

“(b) Specific reforms.—As part of the reforms in military recruiting systems to be undertaken under subsection (a), the Secretary shall take the following steps:

“(1) Improve the system of pre-enlistment waivers and separation codes used for recruits by (A) revising and updating those waivers and codes to allow more accurate and useful data collection about those separations, and (B) prescribing regulations to ensure that those waivers and codes are interpreted in a uniform manner by the military services.

“(2) Develop a reliable database for (A) analyzing (at both the Department of Defense and service-level) data on reasons for attrition of new recruits, and (B) undertaking Department of Defense or service-specific measures (or both) to control and manage such attrition.

“(3) Require that the Secretary of each military department (A) adopt or strengthen incentives for recruiters to thoroughly prescreen potential candidates for recruitment, and (B) link incentives for recruiters, in part, to the ability of a recruiter to screen out unqualified candidates before enlistment.

“(4) Require that the Secretary of each military department include as a measurement of recruiter performance the percentage of persons enlisted by a recruiter who complete initial combat training or basic training.

“(5) Assess trends in the number and use of waivers over the 1991–1997 period that were issued to permit applicants to enlist with medical or other conditions that would otherwise be disqualifying.

“(6) Require the Secretary of each military department to implement policies and procedures (A) to ensure the prompt separation of recruits who are unable to successfully complete basic training, and (B) to remove those recruits from the training environment while separation proceedings are pending.

“(c) Report.—Not later than March 31, 1998, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report of the trends assessed under subsection (b)(5)(of this note). The information on those trends provided in the report shall be shown by armed force and by category of waiver. The report shall include recommendations of the Secretary for changing, revising, or limiting the use of waivers referred to in that subsection.”

“(1) that secondary educational institutions in the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the territories of the United States should cooperate with the Armed Forces by allowing recruiting personnel access to such institutions; and

“(2) that it is appropriate for such institutions to release to the Armed Forces information regarding students at such institutions (including such data as names, addresses, and education levels) which is relevant to recruiting individuals for service in the Armed Forces.”

Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement; Institutions of Higher Education

Thursday, January 13, 2000

*2056 AGENCY: Department of Defense (DoD).

ACTION: Interim rule with request for comments.

SUMMARY: The Acting Director of Defense Procurement has issued an interim rule amending the Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS) to implement Section 549 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000. Section 549 amends statutory provisions pertaining to the denial of Federal contracts and grants to institutions of higher education that prohibit Senior Reserve Officer Training Corps units or military recruiting on campus.

DATES: Effective date: January 13, 2000.

Comment date: Comments on the interim rule should be submitted in writing to the address shown below on or before March 13, 2000, to be considered in the formation of the final rule.

E-mail comments submitted via the Internet should be addressed to: dfars@acq.osd.mil

Please cite DFARS Case 99-D303 in all correspondence related to this rule. E-mail comments should cite DFARS Case 99-D303 in the subject line.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

A. Background

This interim rule revises DFARS 209.470, 243.105, and 252.209-7005 to implement Section 549 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000 (Pub. L. 106-65). Section 549 amends 10 U.S.C. 983 to prohibit DoD from providing funds by contract or grant to an institution of higher education (including any subelement of that institution) if the Secretary of Defense determines that the institution (or any subelement of the institution) has a policy or practice that prohibits, or in effect prevents, Senior Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) units or military recruiting on campus.

This rule was not subject to Office of Management and Budget review under Executive Order 12866, dated September 30, 1993.

B. Regulatory Flexibility Act

DoD does not expect this rule to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities within the meaning of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601, et seq., because the rule applies only to institutions of higher education that prohibit Senior ROTC units or military recruiting on campus. Therefore, DoD has not performed an initial regulatory flexibility analysis. DoD invites comments from small businesses and other interested parties. DoD also will consider comments from small entities concerning the affected DFARS subparts in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 610. Such comments should be submitted separately and should cite DFARS Case 99-D303.

C. Paperwork Reduction Act

The Paperwork Reduction Act does not apply because the rule does not impose any information collection requirements that require the approval of the Office of Management and Budget under 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq.

D. Determination to Issue an Interim Rule

A determination has been made under the authority of the Secretary of Defense that urgent and compelling reasons exist to publish this interim rule prior to affording the public an opportunity to comment. This interim rule implements Section 549 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000. Section 549 amends statutory provisions pertaining to the denial of Federal contracts and grants to institutions of higher education that prohibit Senior ROTC units or military recruiting on campus. Section 549 became effective on October 5, 1999. DoD will consider comments received in response to this interim rule in the formation of the final rule.
